

ENJOYABLE VISIT
SPENT BY EDITORS

Members of Indiana Democratic Editorial Association and Guests
Invade Seymour.

LUNCH SERVED AT NEW LYNN
State Officials and Many Prominent Democratic Politicians Seen
Among Number.

The members of the Indiana Democratic Editorial Association laid down their pens, forgot the busy rush of the newspaper game and gave no thought to the problem of furnishing copy today. A party of one hundred fifty, composed of editors, some of them accompanied by their wives, leading Democratic politicians of the state and prominent men were entertained at Seymour today by the Commercial Club while enroute to New Albany for the annual midsummer meeting. Three special interurban cars were engaged to carry the party from Indianapolis to New Albany and the stop was made here shortly after the noon hour. It was the first stop on the trip and the members of the party were glad to spend a short time in this city.

As arranged by the Commercial Club a luncheon was served at the New Lynn Hotel about 1:30. Mayor Swope welcomed the visitors and told them that the people of Seymour were glad to have them visit the city. Responses were made by Charles C. Arnold, of Greencastle, president of the Association, and Lew M. O'Bannon, an attorney from Corydon, who expressed the appreciation of the guests in a few well chosen remarks. After the luncheon was served the guests spent the time until the cars left in meeting Seymour citizens. They were more than pleased with the treatment accorded them by the Commercial Club and many compliments were passed upon the appearance of the city.

A souvenir printed especially for the occasion was distributed among the members of the party. On the front of the souvenir was a cut showing the advantageous location of Seymour relative to the surrounding cities. On the second page appeared the program for the visit here and on the third page were printed some complimentary facts about Seymour. On the last page was a list of the articles manufactured in this city to show the visitors that Seymour was a live manufacturing town and that various supplies could be furnished by the local factories.

Special arrangements were made by L. R. Fosgate, proprietor of the New Lynn Hotel, for the visitors. An elegant luncheon was served which the guests complimented very highly. The management of this hostelry is prepared to entertain large dinner parties and the service given today speaks well for the hotel.

Among the editors on the trip are: W. N. Moss, of the Linton Call; Joseph E. Turner, of the Linton Citizen; Lew M. O'Bannon, of the Corydon Democrat; A. N. Crecraft, of the Franklin Democrat; G. E. Finney, of the Martinsville Democrat; Isaac Strouse, of the Rockville Tribune; F. L. Behymer, of the Liberty Express; Walter S. Chambers, of the Newcastle Democrat; E. W. McGinnis, of the Indianapolis Independent; George L. Saunders, of the Bluffton Banner; J. H. Heller, of the Decatur Democrat; A. D. Moffett, of the Elwood Free Press and Record; E. A. Schrieker, of the Starke County Democrat, secretary of the editorial association; Charles Weldler, a state representative, who represented the South Bend New Era, on the trip.

Thomas M. Honan, attorney general, was a member of the party and was right at home when the cars reached Seymour. He introduced the editors and guests to the citizens who gathered at the New Lynn Hotel to welcome them.

Other state officials and prominent democratic politicians on the trip were:

L. G. Ellingham, secretary of state; J. Fred France, clerk of the supreme court; State Senators Will A. Yarling, Shelbyville; Frederick Van Nuy, Anderson; C. A. McCormick, who also is an editor at North Judson; Charles S. Batt, city judge of Terre Haute, and Donn Roberts; Mayor David E. Fickle, of Logansport, and family; James H. Fry, state oil inspector; Thomas F. Colbert, custodian of the statehouse; Thomas W. Broiley, state statistician; Mrs. Julian Hogue, Danville, a relative of Governor Ralston; W. E. Longley, state fire marshal; Guernsey Van Riper, an Indianapolis newspaper man; State Senator Henry A. Harmon, Indianapolis; Homer Cook, Speaker of the house of representatives; Charles A. Garrard, quartermaster-general of the Indiana national guards; Ben Strickland, of the state printing bureau, and others.

Governor Ralston was unable to make the trip with the party but hopes to meet the editors at French Lick. Mrs. Ralston and children, Emmett and Ruth, however, were members of the party.

Charles J. Arnold, of the Greencastle Herald, president of the Democratic Editorial Association, was a member of the party and spent his time in introducing the editors. He was accompanied by Mrs. Arnold and his sister, Miss Dorothy Arnold.

Frank Gwin, of New Albany, president of the Association last year, came to Seymour in advance of the arrival of the special cars and completed arrangements for the party.

The Indianapolis newspapers were represented by staff correspondents, W. H. Blodgett, known throughout the state as "Billy" was on the job and rushed back and forth from the hotel to the telegraph office. This was his "busy day" and he covered the trip in detail.

The Indianapolis Star was represented by S. N. Snively, state editor, who knew everybody and everybody knew him. He was looking after the interests of his paper and enjoying an outing at the same time. John H. Quinn, a staff correspondent of the Star, was hustling around the lobby of the hotel with his pockets filled with notes for a "real live story." YOUTH KILLED BY
ELECTRICAL BOLT

Son of Mr. and Mrs. William Thias,
Formerly of This County, Killed
by Lightning.

BODY WILL BE SHIPPED HERE

Boy Was Struck While Seated on Wagon—Clothing Was Burned
From His Body.

Word was received here this morning that Earl Thias, the eighteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Thias, formerly of this city, was struck and killed by lightning at his home near Elnora Wednesday.

The letter was received by Fred Thias, this morning stating that that section was visited by a severe electrical storm and that all the telephone and telegraph wires were down and for that reason the parents of the boy were unable to send a message here. The letter was written shortly after the boy was killed.

Mr. and Mrs. William Thias, formerly lived on a farm on the Yankee road south of the city but sold the place four years ago and moved to Elnora. The boy is survived by his parents and one sister. He also leaves a large number of relatives in Jackson County.

The funeral will be held at Elnora Friday and the remains will be brought here for burial. The body will arrive about 10:30 o'clock and will be taken directly to Riverview cemetery.

A dispatch from Washington this afternoon adds the following particulars about the accident:

Earl Thias, age eighteen, was killed and R. J. Fielder, his brother, Abe Fielder and a man named Allen were knocked unconscious late yesterday afternoon when lightning struck the barn on the Abe Huff farm, tenanted by R. J. Fielder. The men had sought shelter there from a storm. Six valuable horses and one mule were also killed. The farm is a short distance from Elnora.

Young Thias was killed instantly, his clothing having been burned from his body. The three other men were rendered unconscious and for several hours it was feared they would not recover, but four doctors succeeded in reviving them, and today they are apparently well. The men were thrashing on the Huff farm when the storm came up and they sought shelter in the barn, taking all the horses with them. Just before the lightning struck the barn young Thias was seated in the wagon holding the horses. R. J. Fielder was holding the bridles to quiet the animals.

Funeral Friday.

The funeral of the late Frank Spray will be conducted Friday morning at 11 o'clock from the U. B. church at Acme, Rev. Mr. Neal officiating. Burial in the church cemetery.

Police Called to Quell Small Riot at
B. & O. Southwestern Passenger Depot.

After imbibing too freely in spirituous and malt liquors a crowd of men engaged in a free for all scrap at the B. & O. Southwestern passenger station last night and the police were called to quell the disturbance. The names of all the men were not recorded by the officers and it is understood that the rioters did not live in this city.

Two of the disturbers were taken to the city jail but were released upon their promise to return this morning for trial. They decided, however, that the free air on the outside was better than the black iron bars on the inside and failed to show up at the appointed hour today. The officers are looking for them, but it is believed that they have left the city. Several blows were struck in the fight but no one was hurt. The men indulged in some boisterous talk and the fight would probably have been more serious had it not been for the arrival of the police.

FARMER WANTS WIFE AND ADVERTISES IN NEWSPAPER

C. Starrs, Who Lives Near This City, is Looking Around For "The Only Girl."

C. Starrs, who lives north of the city on a farm, wants to get married. He has battled the cold, cruel world single handed long enough and wants someone who will share his happiness and disappointments with him. In the classified column will be found an advertisement for a wife and the advertiser is patiently awaiting the replies. He promises some girl a good home but has certain requirements which he demands of the "only girl."

Mr. Starrs came here from Kentucky several months ago and says he is a concrete worker and farmer. He declares that marriage is a business proposition and that every man should have a helpmate. "Down in Kentucky," he said, "there are lots of girls but most of them don't want to get married and those that do are not the right kind." He said that he did not expect to remain here long as a man could make more money traveling around than by staying in one place too long.

AT HEARING AT MITCHELL

Local Man Promptly Released by Court of Stealing Rain Coat and Shot Gun.

R. W. Waterson, who has been under arrest at Mitchell the past few days, upon a charge of stealing a rain coat and shot gun, was acquitted by Judge Giles at a preliminary hearing yesterday.

Mr. Waterson was arrested here by Robert Gasaway, of the Mitchell Horse Thief Detective Association. He said that he was not guilty as charged and after the evidence of the state was introduced the defendant was acquitted by the court. The testimony of the witnesses for the defense was not taken as Judge Giles decided that the state's evidence was not sufficient to convict him.

AWARD CONTRACTS FOR NEW BRIDGES

County Commissioners Received
Many Estimates from Contractors
For Proposed Work.

FIRST BIDS WERE REFUSED

Some of the Culverts Swept Away
During March Flood Have Never Been Repaired.

Contracts for the construction of a number of new bridges and for the repair of several others that were damaged by the March flood have been awarded by the county commissioners. The first bids for the proposed work were received at the previous session of the commissioners but it was decided that all the estimates were too high or had not been properly prepared. Another advertisement was made and figures were again received.

Some of the bridges were completely swept away by the high water and as they had not been replaced the farmers have been inconvenienced in reaching the markets. In some places temporary roadways around the bridges were opened through the adjoining fields but they are rough and unsatisfactory. The farmers and others who use the highways extensively are anxious that the repair of all bridges and culverts be made without further delay.

The bridge contracts were as follows:

Gilbert Springs bridge, Owen township, Mort Scott, superstructure $200; substructure, $7.90 per cubic yard.

Pollert bridge, Washington township, Chas. Rosenmeyer, $238.

Lambring bridge, Washington township, Chris. Moritz, superstructure, $594; Chas. Rosenmeyer, substructure, $5.25 per cubic yard.

GROWING CROPS BURNING
UP FOR WANT OF MOISTURE

Continued Drought Has Telling Effect on Corn and Melons on High Sandy Ground.

The continued drought is causing the farmers of Jackson county much concern at this time and they declare that unless a good, soaking rain falls in a short time the growing crops will be practically ruined. It has been several weeks since a rain was recorded in some parts of the county and the hot sun has had a telling effect on the crops. Some of the farmers report that their corn has the appearance of having been burned and fear that the crop will be very small. Before the drought the prospects for a bumper crop were very encouraging.

The pasture is slowly drying up and this condition causes a smaller milk supply. Farmers who have been selling milk and butter to private families have canceled the orders until the pasture is in better condition. The melon vines are in need of rain and it is reported that the tomato plants have been injured. A heavy rain would put new life in all growing crops and unless it comes soon late crops will be failure.

House Committee Must Wait
Senate's Convenience.

TO PROBE MULHALL CHARGES

Action of House in Appointing a Committee to Look Into the Startling Allegations Made by Veteran Lobbyist Opens the Way For a Controversy With the Senate Committee in Possession of All Papers in the Case.

Washington, July 10.—The house by a unanimous vote passed a resolution authorizing an inquiry into charges made by Colonel Martin M. Mulhall that the National Association of Manufacturers maintained a lobby that sought improperly to influence legislation and the conduct of members of congress.

The action of the house opens the way for a controversy with the senate committee which is in possession of all the papers on which the Mulhall charges are based. Senator Overman, chairman of the senate committee on inquiry, announced several days ago that he and his assistants would retain the Mulhall papers until their investigation into this phase of the lobby question came to an end. Without the data the hands of the special house committee just created are tied.

This committee is as follows: Representatives Garrett of Tennessee, chairman; Cline of Indiana, Russell of Missouri and Roddenberry of Georgia, Democrats; Stafford of Wisconsin and Willis of Ohio, Republicans, and Nolan of California, Bull Moose.

Under the terms of the resolution adopted by the house an effort will be made to determine just who originated the idea for a probe of the affairs of the United States Steel corporation conducted by a special committee in the last congress under the direction of Representative Stanley of Kentucky. The resolution also opens the way for an inquiry into the forces behind other recent investigations by congress. Testimony brought out before the senate committee was to the effect that David Lamar wrote the original steel trust resolution and that he turned it over to Henry B. Martin, head of the so-called Anti-Trust League of America.

The National Association of Manufacturers is preparing to make a fight when the charges of Colonel Mulhall are brought before the investigators of the alleged lobby. At an executive session of the senate committee held last evening the request of the national association to be represented by counsel at the hearings was tentatively granted. The committee will permit the association to be represented by counsel, but the scope of the legal assistance to be extended may be limited by further action on the part of the committee.

The National association leaders claim they are "loaded for bear." The letters which Colonel Mulhall sold to the newspapers as a part of his now famous "exposure" of the methods of the National Manufacturers association will be supplemented in the evidence and their power and purpose deflected if possible by the presentation of reams of letters which Colonel Mulhall has in the past written to officers of the association. It is understood that these letters, while not non-partisan in character, are distinctly bi-partisan, for the colonel in them claimed to have influence with Democrats as well as Republicans.

ACTOR ACQUITTED BY JURY

Charge of Murder Went Down Before
"Unwritten Law."

Hackensack, N. J., July 10.—James S. Devlin, the vaudeville actor, who shot and killed Patrolman Patrick Considine in the Devlin home in Cliffside, was acquitted of the charge of murder by a jury that considered the facts for about three hours.

Devlin owed his acquittal largely to his wife, known on the stage as May Ellwood, the "unwritten law" having an influence with the jury. Mrs. Devlin on the witness stand admitted her husband had accused her of being indiscreet with Considine. She denied the accusation, however.

PUMPS WORKING WHEN THE SHIP LEFT PORT

Captain's Wish to Have Vessel
Drydocked Overruled.

Newcastle, England, July 10.—That his ship was doomed evidently was in the mind of Captain Stannard of the steamer Mount Oswald, which left Baltimore for Hamburg on Feb. 17, 1912, and was never heard from again. At the board of trade inquiry which has been begun here, a letter from the captain to his wife, written as the steamer was leaving the American port and mailed by the pilot when he went ashore, was read. It said:

"We have twelve feet of water in the forehold and are not yet out of the harbor. God knows whether we shall ever reach home. The sailors are now working at the pumps. I wanted the ship to be drydocked in New York, but the owners would not allow it."

The Mount Oswald was owned by Dunn & McCoy of Newcastle. Mr. Dunn on the witness stand said he attributed the loss of the ship to her having struck an iceberg or to the unsecured deck cargo which she carried. He said he thought the pilot's advice to have the vessel inspected at Hampton Roads should have been followed.

Murderer Given Life Term. Evansville, Ind., July 10.—The jury in the case of Parley King, charged with first degree murder in the circuit court here, returned a verdict of guilty, fixing his punishment at life imprisonment. King stabbed Samuel Koepler, a traction car conductor, to death on the station platform at Grand View, Ind., Oct. 21.

CHOLERA AMONG BALKAN TROOPS

Another Horror Added to Neighborhood Warfare.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS IN SIGHT

With the Scourge of a Plague Threatening Troops Already Decimated by One of the Bloodiest Battles in History, It Is Believed Warring Neighbors Will Be Found Willing to Devise a Way to Avert Further War.

London, July 10.—During the last few days the Bulgarians are reported to have lost more men killed in the fighting in the Kotechana and Ishtib districts than in the entire campaign against the Turks, and dispatches from Sofia say that King Ferdinand is ready to discuss peace with Serbia and Greece. Serbia, too, has suffered terribly in the fighting, and her troops are attacked by cholera. For this reason it is believed that peace negotiations will be begun without delay.

The Bulgarians now admit the evacuation of Kotechana and Ishtib, but official accounts say that the troops were withdrawn for strategical reasons.

One dispatch from Belgrade says nine battalions of Bulgarian troops were wiped out in a fight with the Servians at Zajetsar Pass. It is stated also that Roumania is waiting for a decisive Bulgarian defeat to invade King Ferdinand's territory. Another Belgrade dispatch says that losses to the Bulgarian and Serbian armies, engaged for days about Kotechana and Ishtib, will reach 35,000. With the report of the termination of the battles the Serbian government claimed a great victory for its troops. The Serbian troops now occupy Kotechana and Ishtib, according to the war office. This assertion is borne out, too, by reports from Sofia, where it is admitted that the Bulgarian troops have evacuated the cities. The Serbian war office believes that the Bulgars have been completely driven off now and that the Serbian victory is complete.

PROSECUTION IS IN SIGHT

There May Be a Way to Reach Lamar
Through Federal Statute.

New York, July 10.—The attitude of United States District Attorney H. Snowden Marshall leaves little doubt that David Lamar will be prosecuted for personating congressmen, who are, as Mr. Marshall contends, officers of the United States government. The punishment for that offense is a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than three years, or both.

At the same time persons in the confidence of members of the grievance committee of the bar association were given to understand that the grievance committee's next important investigation will have to do with the acts of Edward Lauterbach, Lamar's friend, and for whom the "wolf of Wall street" acted or pretended to act in deceiving masters of finance and railroads.

SHIFTING RESPONSIBILITY

Politicians Seeking Way to Shield
Slayers of Havana's Police Chief.

Havana, July 10.—General Armado Riva, chief of the national police, who was shot by Governor Ashbert and Congressman Arias, is dead. Politicians are endeavoring to shift the responsibility from Governor Ashbert to Arias, in the belief that the latter may escape on the plea of being immune because he is a member of the congress. On his deathbed Riva charged that Ashbert fired the fatal shot. The shooting is said to have been a result of Riva's crusade against gambling in political clubs.

Royal Differences Aired.

London, July 10.—The princess royal and her daughter, the Duchess of Fife, have broken the rule which keeps private differences among members of the English royal family away from public scrutiny, by asking the court to pass on the disposition of the property of the Duke of Fife, who died in Egypt as a result of a chill in the wreck of the steamer Delhi on the coast of Morocco last year. It is understood that the question is so intricate that it will take a long time to reach a decision.

JOHN L. McNAB

United States District Attorney,
Who Couldn't Agree With Superior

REJECTED REPORT OF FEDERAL GRAND JURY

Criticism of High Personages
Was Barred.

San Francisco, July 10.—Because it contained criticism of the course of President Wilson and Attorney General McReynolds, in connection with the resignation of John L. McNab, United States district attorney, the report of the federal grand jury, before which was presented the evidence in the Digs and Caminetti "white slave" cases, the postponement of which led to McNab's resignation, has been rejected by Judge William C. Van Fleet in the United States district court. Judge Van Fleet declared he would not permit the report as it stood to become a part of the court record.

Still Resorting to the Torch.

London, July 10.—The fact that militancy is still alive was again made evident by the destruction of one of Sir W. Lever's country houses, involving a loss of about $125,000. This and other outrages which have occurred recently can be accounted for by the fanaticism of individual, hysterical militants.

THE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Battle of Corydon Duly Brought to Mind.

PLUCKY HOME DEFENDERS

The Story of How 450 Untrained Men Armed With Squirrel Rifles and Shotguns, Fought 4,500 Trained Cavalrymen Under General Morgan, Was Retold When Semi-Centennial Was Observed at Old State Capital.

Corydon, Ind., July 10.—Corydon yesterday celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Corydon, in which 450 untrained men, armed with squirrel rifles and shotguns, fought 4,500 trained cavalrymen under General Morgan, after delaying his crossing of the Ohio river and hampering his march from the river to this city.

The battle here was fought July 9, 1863, but it was the climax of skirmishing that began July 7. General Morgan had captured two Ohio river boats and attempted to cross the river, but he found the Indiana men ready for him, and with one cannon they delayed his plans. He succeeded, however, in crossing the stream, but the home guards had chopped down trees in his path, and while his cavalrymen were worrying their way through the forest and down the log-strewn road, squirrel hunters shot their horses and wounded some of the soldiers. It was not until July 9 that Morgan reached Corydon. Here he was checked by the 450 men, but his larger force outflanked the Indiana men and he came to Corydon, where he heard for the first time of the defeat of the Confederates at Gettysburg. The battle of Corydon was one of the two fights north of the Mason and Dixon line, the other being Gettysburg.

EHRMANN LET OUT ON BOND

Court Releases Wealthy Manufacturer
Charged With Murder.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 10.—Emil E. Ehrmann, wealthy overall manufacturer, charged with murder in the first degree for the killing of Edward Wade, a member of the local teamsters' union, during a strike at the Ehrmann plant May 27 last, has been released on $25,000 bond by Judge Charles M. Fortune of the circuit court.

The action of the court followed a three days' trial on a petition for admission to bail and all the evidence given at the hearing was from the witnesses furnished by the state.

In handing down his ruling Judge Fortune said that the evidence given by the witnesses was not sufficient to hold the accused on a charge of murder in the first or second degree.

Bond was immediately furnished by Charles and Albert Ehrmann, brothers of the accused manufacturer. Prosecuting Attorney Richard A. Wernke made a motion for a new trial and announced that if this be refused the prosecution would appeal to the supreme court.

Ehrmann was confined in the Marion county jail for four days during the first week in June, local authorities fearing mob violence here.

Had Never Fired a Revolver.

Hammond, Ind., July 10.—Joseph Clizron, jr., son of an Indiana Harbor business man, was shot and fatally wounded at a wedding celebration there. When wishing the newlyweds godspeed guests took turns at firing a revolver. Andrew Moha, who had never fired a revolver in his life, took the revolver to shoot. Young Clizron was watching the festivities from an adjacent vantage point and Moha's bullet entered his body.

Constable Mysteriously Slain.

Ingalls, Ind., July 10.—Albert Hawkins, an Anderson constable who came here yesterday at the instance of the county prosecutor to get evidence in connection with a "blind tiger" charge, was slain on the main street of this village last night. His body was found on the sidewalk with the throat cut and the jaw crushed. His assailants have not been located.

$50,000 Paper Mill Fire.

Hartford City, Ind., July 10.—A loss estimated at $50,000 was caused by fire at the Blackford paper mill. Lightning probably set fire to a stock shed. In a few minutes thousands of bales of imported pulp and paper stock were on fire. Practically all of the mill's supply of paper making material was destroyed.

Making Insanity the Defense.

Indianapolis, July 10.—The trial of James Gordon, accused of murdering his sister, Gertrude Gordon, is in progress in the criminal court. The defense is introducing testimony for Gordon to prove him of unsound mind.

Court Bars Wife From Home.

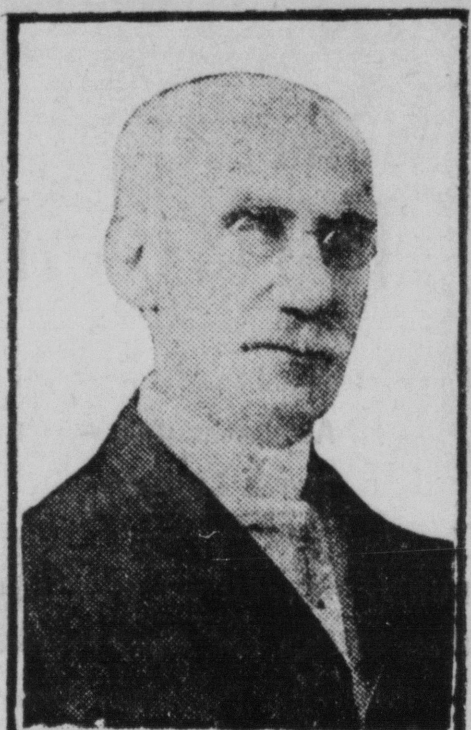

Shelbyville, Ind., July 10.—Sherrick Anders obtained a restraining order to prevent his wife Bertha from entering their home again, and has sued her for a divorce.

Boy Killed by Lightning.

Linton, Ind., July 10.—A son of Martin Elliott, living three miles south of Linton, was struck by lightning and instantly killed.

AN AMENDMENT TO THE ERDMAN LAW

May Pave Way to Avert Big Railway Strike.

Washington, July 10.—According to leaders of both parties the house, with a view to providing a method of arbitration satisfactory to the great interests involved in the threatened railroad strike, will on Saturday pass the senate bill proposing amendments to the Erdman act that are approved by both railroad employers and railroad employees. Both sides to the controversy refuse to arbitrate under the Erdman law in its present form. They take the ground that the law as at present constituted does not provide for an adequate representation of both sides to a controversy between employers and employees, and so far as the present emergency is concerned the act is useless.

The proposed amendments do not change the provision of the Erdman act, which seeks the adjustment of railroad troubles in the first instance by conciliation and mediation through the medium of the government board.

The impression seems to be quite general that if congress acts promptly on this proposed legislation, the threatened railway strike can be averted.

Base Demands on Western Rates.

New York, July 10.—W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and A. B. Garretson of the conductors make the statement that the demands of the trainmen and conductors of the eastern roads, for which they are expected to strike next week, are for the same wages as are paid on the western roads.

Township Votes For Saloons.

Anderson, Ind., July 10.—Adams township, Madison county, including the town of Markleville and the villages of Emporia, Alliance and New Columbus, voted "wet" by a majority of 76 in a local option election.

Aged Woman Killed by Cars.

Vincennes, Ind., July 10.—Mrs. Jane Terhar, seventy-five years old, mother-in-law of Frank Greiter, clerk of the circuit court, was killed by a string of railroad cars.

New Use For Autos.

Huntington, Ind., July 10.—Harry Wolverton, a farmer, ran short of teams and used his big automobile with the hay rake and in operating the fork to fill the mows.

Landmarks of Typewriter Progress

Such are all the recent developments of the

Remington (Visible Models 10 and 11)

Among these developments are:

The Built-in Decimal Tabulator—which makes the decimal tabulating mechanism an integral part of the typewriter.

The Tabulator Set Key—which eliminates all hand setting of the tabular stops.

The Column Selector—which determines, by the stroke of a single key, the exact point on each line where the writing is to begin.

The Adding and Subtracting Remington (Wahl Mechanism)—which combines in one typewriter, and in one operation, the functions of the writing machine and the adding machine.

Every one of these new developments is an evidence of the perpetual leadership of the Remington Typewriter. Illustrated booklet descriptive of all recent Remington improvements, sent on request.

YOUNG BAPTISTS GATHER

B. Y. P. U. Members Meet at Brooklyn for International Convention.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 10—The twentieth international convention of the Baptist Young People's Union opened in the Baptist Temple, Third avenue and Schermerhorn street, this city today.

Every indication is that it will be the most successful convention ever held by this body, and steps have been taken to secure larger quarters should the Temple prove inadequate to hold the delegates in attendance.

Dr. William J. Williamson, president of the International Union, will deliver the president's annual message this evening. Dr. Morris P. Pikes, pastor of the Woodward Avenue church, Detroit, will speak on "Young People in Evangelism." This afternoon, following the educational address, Chairman H. G. Baldwin, of Cleveland, on behalf of the board of managers, will present the Christian Culture Course banners to the winning unions.

Albert Henderson president of the Chicago City Union, will conduct an open conference on the methods and results of the "Double-up Campaign." Professor L. P. Leavell has come from Mississippi to give his address on "Using Every Member," and Dr. Samuel Batten, the denominational leader in social service, will present practical plans for young people's groups.

Friday evening will be denominated night. Dr. Robert Stewart MacArthur, of Manhattan, president of the Baptist World Alliance, will speak on "The Young Baptist and the World View." Dr. W. S. Abernethy, of Kansas City will talk on "The Young Baptist and His Own Church." A. H. Vautier, of Philadelphia, will present the report of the Committee on a standard of Excellence for the Local B. Y. P. U., and John Ruthven, the Illinois State president, will report on the plans for a campaign looking toward the adoption and operation of the standard in every B. Y. P. U. of the International Fraternity.

The Rev. W. J. Sly, director of the Young Peoples' Work in Colorado, will make an address on "The Officer Who Does Things," Saturday morning.

Two great missionary sessions are planned. Taking advantage of the proximity to Ellis Island, the programme Committee, assisted by New York and Brooklyn city mission workers, is arranging for Saturday evening a spectacular display of the picturesque immigrant nationalities and Baptist work among them.

Also, taking advantage of the Centennial anniversary day of Judson's landing in Burma, Sunday, July 13, John M. Moore, of Boston, secretary of the Forward Movement, will assist in presenting a notable celebration programme aided by the Brooklyn Juniors, and in which the son of the great pioneer missionary Dr. Edward Judson of Manhattan will be the central figure.

LOCAL MEN WILL ATTEND MEETING OF RAILROAD MEN.

T. E. Ross and J. E. Banta, Will Represent O. R. C. and B. of R. T. at New York.

T. E. Ross, representative of the O. R. C., and J. E. Banta, of the B. of R. T., were notified today that a conference of the delegates of the organization had been called for Saturday at New York City to discuss the wage situation as presented to the Eastern Association of Railroads. Mr. Ross represents the O. R. C. members of the Indiana division of the B. & O. Southwestern and Mr. Banta represents the B. of R. T. for this division. They will leave tonight to be present at the meeting.

The purpose of the conference is not known definitely but it is understood that some action may be taken regarding the vote of the members to strike unless higher wages were paid. There were over 76,000 votes cast by the trainmen when the question of the proposed strike was left to them and out of that number ninety-four per cent. voted in favor of a strike. It is understood practically all of the local conductors and brakemen voted in favor of a strike. It is believed that a compromise can be effected between the operators and the trainmen to prevent the strike which would tie up more than forty roads.

CORONER DAILEY ATTEMPTS TO LEARN CAUSE OF WRECK.

Railroad Employees Are Being Examined As They Reach City—Fireman Died From Injuries.

Coroner William C. Dailey has examined a number of witnesses to ascertain the cause of the wreck on the B. & O. Southwestern Railroad at Sparksville Sunday in which Edward M. Boyer received injuries from which he died a few hours afterwards. The train wrecked was the eastbound express, No. 12, and Mr. Boyer, the fireman, was thrown under the steam pipes and was terribly scalded.

As practically all the witnesses at the inquest are railroad employees and cannot conveniently come to Seymour at the same time, the evidence is being taken as soon as they reach the city. Coroner Dailey has a number of other persons to examine before his verdict will be filed. It is believed from the testimony that has already been given, that his verdict will be that the engine was derailed by its rocking motion and the truck wheels may have struck the edge of the switch "frog." It appears that the wreck was unavoidable.

Fourth of July Greetings.

Mrs. Musette Cole Hayden, formerly of this city, who now lives at Seattle, Washington, sends the following letter to her Seymour friends, written July 4th:

This is a Fourth of July greeting to the Seymour friends from the beach of the Pacific Ocean. Fourth of July here is not quite as warm as in Seymour. It is cool enough to wear heavy furs, only when one is in the surf. It is raining, but in spite of rain and cool weather in the eve, as the tide is out at that time, everyone runs their motor car up and down the beach from Pacific Beach to Molokai.

The sand is most like concrete and the reflection of the brilliant lights of the cars on the surf is most gorgeous. We, with nine friends, motored in our cars from Seattle, over two hundred miles, and I am the first Hoosier to go in a Hoosier car, Studebaker touring car 1913. One of the party had a Studebaker runabout but he was not a Hoosier by birth. One Thomas Flyer belonging to my brother-in-law went over a bluff but fortunately no one but the Japanese driver was in it; also a Packard tumbled over but the Hoosiers are all right and we were first, Mr. Hayden, John Cole Hayden and myself, to land at the hotel having come the entire distance without an accident.

Musette Cole Hayden.

Sunday Game.

The Seymour W. S. will go to Azalia Sunday where they will play the strong base ball team at that place. Last Sunday the W. S. team defeated the Hoosier Cubs in a fast game by a score of 5-4. The players expect to make a good showing against their opponents next Sunday. With the addition of McOsker and McLaughlin in the lineup the team thinks it is able to hold their own with any amateur team in the state.

The lineup for the game will be: Ortstadt, 3b; McOsker, ss; Sage, lf; McLaughlin, 2b; Riehl, lb; Herman, cf; Fletcher, c; Kelley, rf; Fisher or Bennett, p.

A statement to this effect issued by the state railroad commission is not signed by the Rock Island or by the Chicago Great Western, which assert that their earnings are on a par with those of the Minneapolis and St. Louis road, which railroad the supreme court held has shown that the new rates would be confiscatory. LITTLE JOURNEYS

This is the time of year when nearly everyone is planning some kind of trip. Usually the longer the trip the pleasanter the anticipation of it is.

But there are certain kinds of journeys that are not classed as "pleasure trips" when the weather is hot. These journeys are the necessary shopping excursions.

Two women were overheard talking in the shopping district early one morning of this past week. One of them said, "I wish I could have stayed at home today. I have a list of ten things I must buy, and I know it is going to take me until closing time to get them all."

"I have a list of fourteen articles," the other replied, "but I expect to be home by noon."

"How can you ever manage it?" said the first. "Easily enough. I looked over the newspapers and by going through the advertisements carefully I was able to plan a regular route for my trip. I know just what shops I am going to and what I shall buy in each one."

This wise woman by her intelligent forethought made her shopping trip a pleasant "little journey." No one can afford not to follow her example in reading thoroughly the advertisements in the good newspapers when so much time and nerve-fag can be saved by doing so.

In speaking of the nomination of Mr. Roberts, Judge Batt said "Well, we put one over them that time. TRAMP STEALS CLOTHING AND CASH FROM CAMPERS Tents Searched by Unknown Man Who Escapes—Theft Reported to Police.

A tramp surreptitiously invaded a camp at Rapp's Grove yesterday afternoon and after taking an invoice of the articles not chained to the ground decided upon some clothing. When the members of the camping party returned from a fishing trip they discovered that the tents had been searched and missed several pairs of trousers, a shirt and two dollars in cash. The theft was reported to the local police, but the thief has not been located.

The camp was established by a number of young men who were absent during the afternoon while fishing. The clothing belonged to Charles Colburn and W. S. McGilgaly and the money was taken from Ross Baldwin. Several thefts of a similar nature have been reported recently and the police believe that the clothing was stolen by tramps.

OBITUARY.

William H. Carr, son of Thomas and Mary Boas Carr was born at the old family homestead in Carr township, Jackson County, Indiana June 30th, 1831, and died at his home in said township July 1st, 1913. Aged 82 years and 1 day. He was the youngest son of a family of four children viz: Thomas, Mary, Margaret and himself. He had three half brothers and two half sisters by his father's former marriage, viz: John F., George W., Alexander, Jane A. and Matilda. His early desire was to make himself useful and he spent his available time preparing himself for teaching school which work he followed for several years, taking up also the work of land surveying as a deputy under his brother, Thomas, in which capacity he gained a reputation for the thoroughness and accuracy of his work. On June 20th, 1858 he was united in marriage to Sarah A. Critchfield who preceded him to the grave Oct. 21st, 1892. To this union were born five children, viz: Thomas A., Adelia Fitzgibbon, Barbara, John P. and Samuel, all of whom survive him and were present at the time of his death. He abandoned the active practice of surveying a number of years ago and devoted his time to farming, which may be said to have been his chief occupation, the pursuit of which he loved so well, never practicing his former vocation except upon local occasion or appointment. He took a lively interest in all public matters, and while his health permitted, was thoroughly familiar and informed of all things relating to the public welfare. He was a kind husband, an indulgent father, a true friend and neighbor, and as always regarded with high esteem and a man of unquestioned honesty and integrity. He united with the Methodist Episcopal church in 1906 and died a firm believer in the promises of eternal life. His funeral was held at Weddellville Church of Christ, conducted by Elder C. V. Weddell, July 3rd, 1913.

Found Nero's Dining Room. It Could Be Revolved by Machinery, Says Commendatore Boni. The celebrated Italian archaeologist, Commendatore Boni, the excavator of the Roman forum, has been visiting London, and to a large audience of classical students at King's college he gave a lecture on "The Houses of the Republic Period Now Discovered Under the Palace of Domitian." One of the most interesting statements made by Signor Boni was that he had discovered traces of the original dining room of Nero, which could be revolved by machinery. In his search for the machine room he had discovered three vertical shafts, down one of which he went 120 feet without reaching the bottom. Near one of the vertical shafts, however, he found a tank, and twenty feet below this was a chamber twenty feet wide by sixty feet long, with stones serrated like cogwheels on a horizontal bed. This he took to be the engine room of Nero and his predecessors. The excavations, which were undertaken last season and are still being carried on, are being conducted on a site on the Palatine hill, which, from its important and conspicuous position, must have been the site, said the lecturer, of the houses of the great patrician families. Several highly important discoveries had been made. A study of the palace of Domitian had resulted, said Commendatore Boni, in the discovery of part of a circular drain of the time of Nero. A staircase was found leading to a series of five chambers, separated by arched doorways, in which salt water fish were preserved and segregated according to their size and quality.

CHURCH SHOULD AID FARMER BY OFFERING PRACTICAL HELP

Investigator Declares Country Churches Fall Short of Demands Upon Them.

Should Teach Congregations Scientific Farming Methods and Afford Recreation.

FRED EASTMAN, secretary of the Natinecock Neighborhood association of Locust Valley, N. Y., as the result of fifteen months' work under the auspices of the Presbyterian department of church and country life, is convinced that it is the duty of the church to encourage scientific farming. He deals with the question in a recent article in the Survey, entitled "Farmer Smith and the Country Church," in which he says: "Farmer Smith needs help. He needs it here and now. He is trying to keep his family supplied with food and clothes. He is struggling to give his children an education and at the same time to pay off the mortgage on the farm and to save enough to keep his wife and himself from want in their old age. All around him are those who are waging the same battle, but they give him little help. Each one fights alone, as his father did before him.

Rise in Land Values.

"Twelve years ago Farmer Smith had a $5,000 farm. It yielded him an income of about $500. That was a return of 10 per cent. Today, because of the general rise in land values, that farm is worth $10,000. It yields him about $700. It is now only a 7 per cent investment. His profits have decreased. Moreover, his land is poorer than it was twelve years ago. Smith never learned how to farm intensively. He knows only the crude methods used by his father in the days of virgin soil. The years ahead give him no promise that he will be able to make even as much from his farm as he is making now.

"The economic pinch has left its marks upon his social life. Many of his old neighbors have sold their farms and moved away. Some have left their farms in the hands of tenants, who are robbing the land of its fertility. Community spirit has vanished. The old forms of recreation have lapsed with the passing of the settled population. No new forms have taken their place except in the towns, and these are usually of a character that would not be tolerated in the country.

Farm Life Drudgery.

"Smith's boy is awaiting his first opportunity to get off the farm. His has been a life of all work and no play, and, while it has not exactly made him a dull boy, it has made him hate farming. Smith's wife is leading the life of a drudge, and she swears her daughters are not going to live on the farm if she can help it. With the stagnation in social life has come stagnation in moral and religious life, for morals do not flourish in a stagnant community.

"Smith needs help; he needs to know how to farm more scientifically; he needs a better income; he needs to know how to organize with his fellow farmers to protect themselves against the inroads of the middlemen and the tenants; he needs better markets for his crops and better transportation facilities to those markets; he needs a school for his children that will give them as good an education as they would get in any city school, a school that will instill in them a love of the country, a knowledge of farming and an appreciation of its economic significance; he needs more recreation facilities for the whole family; he needs a handier kitchen for his wife and daughter and more opportunities for them to broaden their lives and enrich their minds in literary and social activities.

"The question is, Should the church give it? Should it go to Farmer Smith and say: "Smith, I am a bit ashamed of myself. I have not been doing for you what I ought. I have been preaching about Elysian fields and allowing the riches of blue grass, corn and wheat fields to be squandered with prodigal hand. I have been trying to pave your road to glory land, but I have paid no attention to your road to the nearest market. I have talked about mansions in the skies and cared little about the buildings in which you and your family must spend their lives here and now. I have been teaching your children God's word in the Bible, but I have left his word in the rivers and the hills, in the grass and the trees, without prophet, witness or defender.

The Church's Chance.

"Forgive me, Smith. I am not going to do it any more. I am going to take an interest in your everyday affairs—your crops, your stock, your markets, your school, your lodge and your recreations. I am going to see if I can help you in your effort to get your boy started on a farm of his own. I've preached a long time against Sunday baseball. Now I'm going to try to give your children so much recreation through the week that they won't care for it on Sunday. I am going to take as one of the articles of my creed, 'I believe in better roads for Smith, and I propose to have them.' I am going to try to save you and your family not only for paradise, but for America and American farms."

Should Church Help?

"Should the country church take its place shoulder to shoulder with Smith in the line in which he is battling for existence? Should it take up the task of encouraging agricultural organizations that will work for more scientific farming, better roads and better markets?"

"Should it throw open its doors, not three hours a week, but three hours a day, to Smith's sons and daughters that they may have a place to meet and to play and to mingle with each other in literary, athletic and social activities? Should the church forget all about itself and its creedal and polemic differences?"

"Should it forget its own salvation in its effort to save Smith? Should it lose itself in his service, even if some churches have to die in the attempt, as long ago their Master died?"

FOUND NERO'S DINING ROOM.

It Could Be Revolved by Machinery, Says Commendatore Boni.

Hessian Fly Appears.

The Hessian fly has made its appearance in the wheat fields of southeastern Nebraska, and reports of slight damage have been made by the farmers. Seventeen year locusts are thick in the orchards there also, but have done no damage.

PIGEON IN RECORD FLIGHT.

Flies 4,200 Miles From Rio Janeiro to Jeannette, Pa.

After forty-eight days of wandering through the hottest part of the torrid and temperate zones Sunny Jim, a noted racing pigeon, belonging to Steven Krupa of Jeannette, Pa., arrived from Rio Janeiro. This feat establishes a record in that no homing pigeon ever before "homed" from a point below the equator. On several occasions continental and American fanciers have shipped homing pigeons to points in Africa and South America, but for some unknown reason no bird has heretofore been able to make its way through the equatorial regions of extreme heat.

Sunny Jim and two other racing pigeons were shipped to Don Diego Becerra, a Rio Janeiro fancier, in April. The birds were allowed a few days to recover from their travel fatigue and then were liberated in the public square of Rio Janeiro. Strangely enough, they took a southerly course.

A cablegram announced the liberation of the birds, and a day later another cablegram said that the birds had returned to the liberating point and, after circling an hour, headed straight north. The air line distance from Rio Janeiro to Jeannette is about 4,200 miles. Nearly one-half of the distance is over water. The other two birds have not yet appeared. The bird made the trip in forty-eight days.

Razor Is Not a Weapon.

The supreme court of Mississippi has held that the razor is not a weapon, but an implement of the toilet. In the case at issue the conviction of Junius Brown, a negro, for carrying concealed weapons was set aside.

City of the Unhappily Wed.

Since Jan. 1, 1913, 481 final decrees of divorce have been granted in Los Angeles, Cal., and about the same number of interlocutory decrees have been entered, while 3,725 marriage licenses have been issued.

The Slashed Skirt.

The day was fine; the skies were blue. I saw her in Fifth avenue, A picture in the dress review, With something silken flashing through The slash in her skirt.

Her manner and her clothes were glad. She looked quite like a fashion ad. And, though she wore the hobble fad, I'm sure she didn't know she had The slash in her skirt.

Ah, she was fair as fair could be And tripped along unconsciously, Without the slightest thought of me Or anybody who might see The slash in her skirt.

Perhaps because she was so fair It made some other women there Turn half around to rudely stare And whisper, "My, how can she wear That slash in her skirt?"

How different were the men! To them Her radiant rags, from hat to hem, Were roses on a lovely stem, And never did a man condemn The slash in her skirt.

She tripped along unconsciously, Her artless femininity, So far from any coarseness free, It really was a joy to see The slash in her skirt.

So gulleless was she, tripping through The crowds along Fifth avenue, I felt somehow it was her due For me to call her notice to The slash in her skirt— But I didn't.

TO RESCUE THE POTATO FROM ILLS IT SUFFERS.

World Scientists Coming to Prescribe For Disease Menaced Crop.

Plant scientists of the world will assemble in this country this summer and visit the potato fields of Maine, New York, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and California to discover a cure for the ills from which this great American crop is suffering.

The party will make a start from Bangor on Aug. 1 and will finish the work in San Francisco about Oct. 1. The entire time of the party will be taken up with study of the diseases which have recently attacked the potato plant. After the return east a report will be made to the United States government and to each of the states visited concerning the result of the survey.

Among those who will take part in this unique investigation will be Dr. O. Oppel of the Imperial Institute of Agriculture and Forestry, Berlin, and Dr. H. W. Wollenwaber, also of Germany, who are authorities on plant diseases. Several scientists are coming from Paris and London, while a large number of American representatives of the economic and cultural side of the potato industry will participate, besides leading professors in plant pathology and specialists of the federal bureau of plant industry.

One car of the special train on which the party will travel will be fitted as a laboratory with microscopes and other necessary instruments and facilities for chemical analysis. A corps of photographers will accompany the party.

According to E. H. Grubb, a widely known potato grower of Colorado, the crop situation is very serious. Unknown diseases have attacked the plant in almost every part of the country, the germs having been imported. It is thought, with some foreign tubers. In Utah, which is one of the great potato growing states, the loss by disease has been so heavy that the state crop has not been large enough to supply home needs. The dreaded "leaf roll," which has caused heavy damage in Colorado and Nebraska, has now made its appearance in Maine and New York. Several diseases, new to science, have made simultaneous attack upon potato plants in Europe and America, and it is hoped that the coming gathering of experts will be able to devise remedies for these ills.

The entire expense of this survey, including the special train of eight cars for the transcontinental tour, is being paid by a group of the railroads that operate in the potato states.

SEX TALKS IN CLASSROOMS.

Chicago to Begin Hygiene Course in High Schools Next Fall.

As a result of plans formulated by the board of education of Chicago sex hygiene will be one of the courses of instruction in the high schools of that city next year. This announcement was made a short time ago by Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of schools, who will engage prominent physicians to give a course of lectures, beginning next September, on all subjects pertaining to sex. The resolution empowering Mrs. Young to act did not state specifically the exact methods of instruction to be given. The question of instruction for elementary schools also was raised, but was decided to be inadvisable.

"The elementary schools need it," said Mrs. Young, "but I do not believe that the time is due when we should take up that phase of the question. I do not believe in sex hygiene so much as I believe in personal purity. All the children in the high schools should be taught matters of this kind. Scientific instruction is an important factor, and it will pay us to have the best instructors obtainable."

CHAPTER V.

The Cargador.

Kate's Narrative.

It was sixty degrees below zero. The moonlight lay in silver on the pines, the hundred-and-four-mile cabin, deep buried among the drifts, glittered along the eaves with icicles, the smoke went up into the hush of death, and the light in the frosted window would glow till nearly dawn.

Within, Pete sat upon his shiny bench, rolling waxed end upon his shiny knee, and tautened his double stitches through the night, scarcely feeling the need of sleep. His new aparejos, stacked as they were finished, had gradually crowded poor Mrs. Pete into her last stronghold, the corner between the wood-box and the bunk. Piercely she resented the filling of her only room with harness, of her bunk with scrap leather, which scratched her, she said. Wedged into her last corner, she would patch disgraceful old socks, while Pete at his sewing crooned "One More River," or some indecent ballad of the gold mines.

"Mother," Pete would look up from his bench. "You mind when I bring her here right to this very cabin, with Father Jared, and the Baby, David?"

"What makes you hover, Pete?" "Dye mind Baby David?" "Didn't I nurse him?" said the old woman softly. "He'd red hair like his stuck-up mother, blue eyes same as Jesse, and a birthmark on his off kidney. Now, did you ask her about that birthmark?"

"I told her," said Pete, "that a suspicious female, with a face like a grebe and an inquiring mind is wistful to inspect Dave's kidneys."

Mother wagged her head. "I own I'd like to believe Kate Smith is back in this country, but you're such a continuous and enduring liar."

"That's so," said Pete. One day when the sun shone brightly into the cabin, Billy arrived with a letter from Captain Taylor. Pete would not give it to mother, or read it aloud, or even tell the news. He danced an ungainly hornpipe, and mother had to shake him.

Now what on air's the matter with yew?" mother boomed over. "Finish them riggings by first May, says he."

"Says I'm partner and boss of the outfit, and running the whole shootin' match, and I'll get more wealth than'll patch hell a mile, and 'There's none like Nancy Lee, I trow, Ow! Ow!"

"Oh, mother, Bolt's give me a half interest, and ain't this a happy little home, my darlin'!"

At that Mrs. Pete flung her skinny arms around his neck, and the two silly old things sobbed together.

A week later, when, to save Pete a long tramp, Billy rode down with the rations, he found the old people concerned "about this yere partnership."

"Mother allows this Brooke is trash," said Pete, wagging his snowy head, "and for all the interest he takes he's mostly corpse. That's shorely holes in my skito bar."

Billy read the letter thoughtfully. "Brooke been to see the riggings?" he asked.

"Once in December. He don't know nothin', either."

"Wonder what he wants?" "Smells mean, eh?"

"A mean smell, Pete."

Billy had spent the week tracking down the two bad characters who had served as witnesses to a false agreement. Their confession was now in evidence against Brooke, in case he dared repudiate Mathson's rights as partner, but there was no need to alarm the cargador. So Billy changed the subject, demanding tea, and there was a fine gossip.

Once after his Saturday's tramp up the great hill, Pete returned looking very old. "I axed Bolt," he explained, "about this yere partnership."

"Well?" asked mother sharply. "Well?"

"Bolt says that's pigs with pink bows to their tails, just stretchin' and stretchin' around his sty."

The old woman turned her back, for Pete was crying.

In April there came a rush of warmth out of the west, licking up all the snow, save only on that high plateau where the Hundred Mile and Spito House seemed to wait and wait in the white silence.

Pete sat under a roof of cedar shakes which he had built to shelter the new "riggings." He was riveting the last of sixty hackamores, as he dreamed of the great north trail, of open meadows by the Hagwilgaet, of the heaven-piercing spire of Tsegeor-dintha at the Forks of Skeena.

"Mother," he said, "I'm no slouch of a cargador. Them red gin cases is still to rig for kitchen boxes, and it's all complete. The mules is fattening good, I hear, and the men's the same as last summer, all worth their feed,

But mother, grim and fierce in the throes of her spring cleaning, had not come to admire. "Pete," she shrieked, "two more buckets of water, and yew jest git a move on. And how long hev yew bin promisin' to whittle me them clothes-pins? Now jest yew hustle, Pete, or I'll get right ugly."

Pete only cut from the plug into his palm, and rolled the tobacco small for his corn-cob pipe. His winter servitude was ended, and he was master, the cargador before whom all men bow in the dread northlands. Mother went off content to carry her own water, and Pete, with something of a flourish, lighted his pipe.

"Mother!" Pete let out a sharp call, and forgetting her business, mother came quite humbly, as though to heel. "Yes, Pete?"

He pointed with his pipe at a distant horseman rounding the flank of the hill.

"Brooke?" she whispered, both gnarled rheumatic hands clutched at her heart. "I reckon," said Pete cheerfully. "Thinks he's a circus procession, scerrel's clattering a loose rear-hind shoe, and her mouth just bleeding as he saws with that spade bit. He's a sure polecat. Trots down-hill, too, and suffers in his tail. Incompetent, mother. Look at his feet. He's bad as a stale salmon, rotten to the bones. Been drinking, too."

Brooke drew up and dismounted, leaving his rein on the horse's neck. Instead of dropping it to the ground. When Brooke moved to sit on an aparejo Pete ordered him to one of the kitchen boxes. "Not Bolt himself may sit on my riggings," said the old gray cargador.

"I thought," said Brooke quite kindly, "that this harness was mine."

"A half-interest," said mother, "surely."

"I fear," said Brooke, "you sort of misunderstood. Old Taylor did say something about your usefulness as a working partner, and, of course, if we hadn't canceled that preposterous contract with the Hudson's Bay Company, there's do doubt your knowledge of the country up north would have been worth paying for. It was, as you say, damned awkward about his being blind as a bat; in fact, I was put to quite a lot of trouble getting the agreement witnessed. However," he produced a document which mother snatched, "it's all there in black and white, and there's the old fool's signature—holds good in any court of law—proves that I've bought and paid for the whole atajo. You needn't claim I haven't a clear title—so you needn't stare at me as if I'd forged the signature. It's straight goods, I tell you."

Mother reeled backward, while she grabbed Pete's shoulders so that the agreement fluttered to Brooke's feet. She steadied herself, then with a husky croak, "You made Bolt sign that—blind, dying, so he dunno what's on the paper."

"Can you prove that?" asked Brooke indulgently, as though he spoke to children. "If you say things like that, it's criminal libel, and you're both liable to the Skookum House. However," he shrugged his shoulders, and put the agreement away, "I don't want to be hard on you, Pete."

"Mister Mathson," mother hissed at him.

Pete, with a whispered word to mother, rose from his bench, and without appearing to see Mr. Brooke, walked past him across the sunlit yard, and on slowly up the great lifting curve of the road to Hundred Mile House.

The sun was setting behind him when Pete rested at last upon the snowclad summit, and dusk lay in lakes of shadow far below him. At the Hundred he found the lamps alight, and, as usual, Billy offered him a drink. "I ain't drinking," said Pete huskily, as he lurched past the bar into the dining-hall, and on to the little room on the right where Captain Taylor lay.

"Bolt!" he whispered. "That you, Pete? Sit down," said the boss cheerily. "How's the claim, Pete? Getting coarse gold, eh?"

"Gold? Say, Bolt, what's the matter, old fellow?"

"Matter? Why, nothing, Pete," the blind eyes shone keenly; "of course I'm not nearly to bedrock yet, and as to what I owe yew's jolly well got to wait. How's old Calamity? I got Lost Creek Jim to work at last."

Was the boss dreaming of old times on Lightning Creek?

"Watty's in the mail," said Bolt. Watty had been dead these thirty years.

Then Pete sat down on the bedside, and the two men prattled about the new flume, and the price of flour in a camp now overgrown with jungle.

A word to Billy would have been enough to get the aparejos to a place of safety, pending the settlement of Pete's just claim as partner. But the cargador knew well that death had come to take the one man he loved. This was no time for sordid business, disturbing Bolt Taylor's peace. It was better to go quietly.

The sky was full of stars as Pete went homeward. The stars were big and round; the forest in an ecstasy kept vigil all alert, all silent, and the little streams of the thaw were saying their prayers before the frost sleep of the later hours. The man was at peace. It is not so very much to be a cargador; but it is a very big thing indeed to be unselfish. The trees kept vigil, the little streams crooned sleepy prayers, the stars in glory humbly served as lamps, and the man made no cry in his pain. Far down in the valley he saw a red flame rise.

Mother saw Brooke rid off to inspect his Star mules in their pasture far away down the Fraser Canon. She blackened the stove with malice, she shook the bedding in enmity, set the furniture to rights as though it were being punished, then sat on the damp floor brooding, while twilight deepened.

I Discovered the Old Cargador Crouched Down Against the Trunk.

ed over a world of treachery. Brooke was a thief, the lying boss had used Pete and thrown him away wrong dry. And Pete was an old fool who would forgive.

She had dreaded the lonely summer when she was left with only squirrels for company. Now Pete would be "settlin'" around, ruined, and out of work, the man who had been used and thrown aside, the laughing-stock of the teamsters who saw his pride brought low.

The frontier breeds fierce women, with narrow venomous enmities toward the foes of the house. Even if Pete suffered, Brooke should not prosper, or the boss who had failed her man. Mother dragged two five-gallon cans of petroleum from the lean-to, and staggering under their weight, poured the oil over all Brooke's harness. Breathing heavily with her labor, she carried loads of swampy hay, and cord-wood, until the aparejos were but part of a bonfire. Then with a brand from the stove she set the hay alight. There should be no public shame to break Pete's heart, there should be no pack-train unless he were cargador.

Pete stood beside the ashes, searching mother's face with his slow brooding eyes. Her burning rage was gone, and she was afraid, for now she thought too late of all his loving pride in the work, the greatness of the thing which his knowledge and skill had made. That she had burned. Understanding how love had made this blunder, Pete said no word. He only knew that Bolt had paid him seven hundred dollars cash and kind, which must be returned. In silence he turned away, and once more faced the terrible hill which led to the Hundred Mile House.

The spring was in my blood, and I could not sleep. Can any creature sleep when the spring's sweet restless air calls to all nature? Even the little birds were coming back to the north, for now and again as I strolled along the road I would hear a sleepy twitter. "Isn't it dawn yet?" "Not yet, have another nap." So I came to the brow of the great hill whence I should see the dawn.

I was turning back refreshed toward my duty, when I heard something moan. The sound came from underneath a pine tree, the one at the very top of the long climb which Pete had blazed with his inscription, "Got that." With my heart in my mouth I went to find out what was the matter, and so discovered the old cargador crouched down against the trunk.

"Pete," I asked in a very shaky voice, "what on earth's the matter?"

"Dying, mum."

"But it's too damp here. Why, you'll catch your death of cold."

"That would never do. Say, mum, how's Bolt?"

"Oh, ever so much better."

"Can't do it," said Pete, "if I died first he'd have the joke on me."

"Wouldn't you like a hot rum?"

Pete staggered to his feet. "I'd go for that," he sighed, "just like one man."

So he took my arm, and I helped him along the road.

"She burned them riggings," he said.

"Mother?"

"Yes. Brooke came inspecting them riggings, so mother burned 'em."

"Won't that be rather awkward?"

"Some. You see, mum, Bolt paid me four hundred and five dollars cash, so I come to return him the money."

I didn't quite understand. "You see, Pete," I suggested, "you and Brooke are the owners. Don't you owe half to yourself and half to Brooke?"

"Well, if that's so, I'll pay myself and owe the rest to Brooke. But then he claims the whole Star atajo."

"In that case you owe the whole of the money to Brooke."

"I don't mind owing Brooke," Pete felt so much better that he was able to walk without help. "Brooke's gone on to inspect mules. I wonder how he'll get on with them mules?"

As it happened, Jesse was an actual witness to Mr. Brooke's inspection of the Star mules at their pasture below his ranch. Here is his narrative:

"The trouble for these poor mules was that they followed a false goddess. Their bell mare Prue ought to have been old enough to know better, but at the age of twenty-three, with gray hair and bald withers, she was still female."

"She and her mules had been grazing maybe half a mile when my new stallion, young Jehoshaphat, happened along with his harem of twenty-five mares, smelling down wind for a drink. The mares looked so snug and grass-fat they could scarcely waddle, but Jehoshaphat was full of sinful pride, waltzing high step at the sight of Prue.

"You should have seen Prue playing up innocent modesty in front of Jehoshaphat, pretending she wasn't there, making believe she was too sudden, didn't approve of the gentleman, flattering his vanity with all sorts of airs and graces. Prue paraded herself along in front of the harem to spite the married mares, and all her mules came worshipping along in pursuit. Those mares gave the mules the biggest kicking you ever saw in your life."

"There was me lying on Face Rock like a little boy at a circus, and there was the performance proceeding so joyful that I never saw Brooke until he rode down right into the middle of the fun. Jehoshaphat got mad and went from Brooke, chasing him around the pasture. Prue chased Jehoshaphat, the mules chased Prue, the harem bit and kicked at everybody, Brooke galloped delirious in all directions, and I laughed until I could hardly hold down the rocks."

"Of course, if Brooke hadn't been a mere mistake on earth, he would have herded gently to the nearest corral, and cut the two outfits apart. But Brooke proceeded to lose his temper, pulled his gun, jumped his wretched sorrel behind a tree, and let drive. He missed the stallion. He shot Prue through the heart."

"There was nothing after that to keep the sixty Star mules together. Some went up the canon, some down, a few even swam the Fraser, but the heft of them climbed the big cliffs and vanished into the forest."

"I reckon Pete and his arrieros could collect those mules and break them to loving a new madrina. But with Brooke as cargador, the great Star Pack-train's numbered with the past, and Mathson's partnership is scarce worth arguing."

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

HOT WEATHER HASHES.

WHEN you want to make some savory yet easily digested food to serve for breakfast, luncheon or tea a nice hash may be prepared. Hash may be made with fresh instead of leftover meat, although it affords one an easy way of using up the odds and ends left from the preceding day's meals.

Some recipes for excellent hashes are given here:

Appetizing Baked Hash.

Baked Hash.—Take one and a quarter pounds of shoulder or neck of mutton, lean as you can get it. Cover with boiling water and cook until tender. Remove the bones and gristle and chop the meat very fine. Add three boiled and creamed potatoes, a tablespoonful of butter, half a teaspoonful of salt, pepper to taste, a tablespoonful of parsley minced very fine and a few drops of onion juice. Mix all together and turn into a baking dish. Pour over the mixture a tablespoonful of milk, add fine bread-crumbs mixed with melted butter and bake a nice brown about twenty minutes. Serve from the same dish.

Two Good Recipes.

Creamed Hash.—Cut beef, veal or mutton in slices; then chop fine and brown in a little fat pork or bacon drippings. Drain from the fat and into same pan put two tablespoonfuls of flour to two of fat and rub smooth. Then add a cup of rich milk or cream. Salt and pepper to taste and stir until it boils up; then add the meat and cook long enough to heat thoroughly. Pour over toasted slices of bread.

Hashed Beef in Casserole.—To a pound of cold beef allow a tablespoonful of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour, half a pint of stock, a good sized tomato and a small onion. Heat the butter in the casserole. Chop and fry the onion in the butter. Next add the flour, fry it a little and moisten with the gravy. Peel and cut up the tomato and add it to the stew. Season all with pepper and salt and simmer for fifteen minutes. Strain, place the slices of meat in the pot, add the gravy and simmer all for twenty minutes. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve.

BULLET PHOTOGRAPHY.

Curious Effect of Shooting Through a Thin Stick of Wood.

Moving pictures have been made at the rate of 100,000 a second in contrast with the rate of fifteen or twenty a second, which is enough when reproduced on a screen to give the eye the impression of a continuous picture. The only thing that moves fast enough to make such tremendous speed worth using is a bullet, and some extraordinary pictures of bullets have been taken at this rate, seventy-two pictures being taken of a revolver bullet as it moved ten inches from the muzzle.

Pictures of a bullet passing through a stick of wood showed a queer condition. The bullet passed completely through the thin stick and was well on its way beyond before the wood gave any sign of distress. Then some tiny splinters started out, following the bullet; the stick began to split, and after the bullet had proceeded some distance the stick suddenly fell to pieces. No camera shutters are fast enough to take pictures at anything like this speed, so no shutter was used.

Instead, a series of electric sparks was flashed, the sparks following one another at the rate of 100,000 a second, each spark making a picture. The film was mounted on a wheel about three feet in circumference, and the wheel was revolved at the rate of 9,000 revolutions a minute. When all was ready the bullet was shot, the spark flashed and the wheel revolved, the actual exposure being limited to a fraction of a second so as not to pile up pictures one over the other.—Saturday Evening Post.

Not in His Line.

A motor stopped in front of the photographer's, and a woman lacking none of the artificial accessories deemed necessary to "looks" entered the studio. "Not one of those pictures looks anything like me," the woman insisted. The photographer tried in every way to pacify her, but, finding this an impossibility, lost control of his temper. "Madam," he exclaimed, "did you read my sign?" "Yes." "Well, it does not say 'cleaning, dyeing and remodeling.' It says 'portraits.'"—New York Times.

The Sequel to the Joke.

Many years ago a visitor to Edinburgh was being shown over the high court of justiciary. He made some remark concerning the dock and its duties, and in reply the official jokingly said the visitor might one day be sentenced to be hanged in that very room. The sightseer was the notorious Dr. Pritchard. Two years later in the dock he had so closely inspected he was doomed to death for poisoning his wife and mother-in-law.
